IN PURSUIT OF CREDIBLE AUTOMATED ELECTIONS

An Open Letter to the Comelec

With a strong sense of urgency, we, concerned citizens of the Philippines, respectfully request that the Commission on Elections (Comelec) consider our proposal for a simplified, credible, manual count as a means to guarantee the integrity of the May 14 national elections.

We appeal to Chairman Jose Mada and the other Comelec commissioners to be open-minded and to keep to their hearts the best interest of the Filipino people.

The integrity of automated elections has suffered because the Commission used many of the safeguards that were initially set in place—source code review, ultra-violet mark checking, mathematical check through digital signatures, etc.

Credibility and acceptance of the outcome of the elections can be restored by simply adding two easy steps—the purified manual count, as proposed by the Information Technology (IT) community.

In their proposal, the Institute of Election Technology (IETec) will manually count all the votes cast for the president, vice president, and any of those from local election positions—governors, congressmen, and senators—and compare them with the results of the counting done by the Precinct Count Optical Scan (PCOS) machines.

If the difference is all of the three positions is less than one percent (1%) of the total number of ballots counted, then the IETec may immediately transmit the results electronically. But if the difference is one percent (1%) or more, in any of the three positions, then we request that a full manual count of all candidates be done.

According to their time and resource studies, the additional time for the purified manual count will only be about three hours. Should there be discrepancies in all the ballots between the counted and the PCOS counts, then the additional time for the full manual count of all candidates would only be two days, plus another two days at the run-off level.

We estimate this additional step to cost around P100 million, mostly for additional transportation for the IETec, and covering the all ballots in all precincts would be counted in full. This is a small price to pay to ensure the security of the ballot and leave the people's confidence in the automated elections.

We believe the proposed purified manual count is credible, feasible, and will not compromise a secret on public resources.

But the Comelec must decide and act now!

If the Comelec decides after April 28, which is the election-day-off date for a presidential count to be done, then we are almost and greatly concerned that the May 14 elections would remain seriously vulnerable to manipulation and fraud, could result to chaos and unrest, and would not be credible in the eyes of the voting public.

The Filipino people, to they deny the honest, clear, and credible outcome, cannot allow the credibility of their vote to be tampered upon.

We implore the Comelec to decide in favor of the IETec's manual count for selected positions.

Sandigan clears NFA exec of charges No proof accused took $18 000

By Robert L. Anderson

MANILA, Philippines — A Sandigan Council panel has cleared a National Freedom Alliance (NFA) executive of charges that he took a bribe of $18,000 from a businessman to help him win a contract to supply food for the NFA's military forces. The panel found that the NFA executive, who was accused of taking the bribe, had no proof that he had received the money. The panel also found that the businessman had no proof that he had paid the bribe. The panel's decision is a significant blow to the NFA's efforts to win the support of the military forces.

By David L. Johnson

Meatless meals are a popular choice for many people, and for good reason. They are often healthier, easier on the stomach, and can be a great way to save money. But when it comes to cooking meatless meals, there are a few things you need to know. First, you need to choose the right cookware. Second, you need to choose the right ingredients. And third, you need to choose the right recipe.
